

Brief Biographies of Authors

Loukas N. Anninos, is currently serving as a member of Specialized Scientific Staff at the Hellenic Authority for Higher Education (Greece), in which he is involved in university quality assurance and graduate tracking. During the past, he has taught Human Resources Management and Organizational Behavior at the University of Piraeus (undergraduate and postgraduate level), and he has participated in several EU funded projects.

Anninos has studied Business Administration (bachelor's degree) and Total Quality Management (master's degree) at the University of Piraeus. Part of his postgraduate studies has been completed at Linköpings Universitet in Sweden. His Ph. D Thesis (University of Piraeus) addresses the issue of performance evaluation in higher education. During his undergraduate and postgraduate studies, he received scholarships from the Greek State Foundation for Scholarships for exceptional academic performance. Loukas N. Anninos has also received a scholarship from the prestigious Onassis Foundation for his doctoral studies.

His research portfolio includes publications in peer reviewed journals, books and presentations in many national and international conferences. His research interests include organizational excellence, quality and performance evaluation in higher education, service quality, responsible business education, human resources management, organizational behavior and neuroscience. Anninos has received several international distinctions, and he is a member of academic organizations and groups.
